

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Dedication	13	VIII. Associated elements and parts with regard to the colouring of historic buildings	57
Foreword	15	1. Components of the entablature
I. Introduction	19	2. Columns, pilasters and their components
II. Some of the views that have spread concerning the colouring of buildings	21	3. Window framing
III. What is discussed in this study and what is not	27	4. Recesses in the base of a wall, niches and the inner plane of niches
IV. The need for this study	31	5. Corner reinforcements (quoins)
V. Two main groups of aspects with regard to the colouring of historic buildings	35	IX. Analysis of examples with suggestions for correction	81
VI. An example that justifies the need to know the principles	43	X. The relationship between cornices and supporting structures	83
VII. The appearance of building colouring	47	XI. Window frames, facade opening frames	89
		XII. Some more examples from Kőszeg	105
		XIII. It's about knowledge that isn't only necessary in terms of historic buildings!	117

XIV.	The colouring of wall niches	123	Glossary	176
XV.	Different colouring practices from different periods of style	131	Bibliography	182
XVI.	Where there was no architectural division...	137
XVII.	Rule for colour separation when using more than one colour	141
XVIII.	The recommended number of colours to be used on a façade	151
XIX.	The architectural meaning of light and dark colours	159
XX.	Usable materials and technology	163
XXI.	Summary	167
	Case study from Kőszeg	171		